Prof. Dr. Nie was trained originally as a physician in Chinese medicine in China, then in sociology, medical humanities and bioethics in North America. His research focuses on medical ethics in China, Chinese views and experiences of abortion, population control in China, and Japan's wartime human experimentation. Through investigations into these different but related subjects, he has put forward and is developing a distinctive transcultural approach to bioethics and comparative cultural studies.

His publications include

Medical Ethics in China: A Transcultural Interpretation (2011)

Behind the Silence: Chinese Voices on Abortion (2005)

Japan's Wartime Medical Atrocities: Comparative Inquires in History, Science and Ethics (editor-in-chief, 2010)

Three chapters in The Cambridge World History of Medical Ethics (2009)
